Survivor from JFK limo says 3 shots fired

Mrs. Connally disputes Warren panel findings

DALLAS (AP) — Nellie Connally, the last surviving passenger of the car in which President Kennedy was assassinated, is reasserting her belief that the Warren Commission was wrong about one bullet striking both JFK and her husband, former Gov. John Connally.

"I will fight anybody that argues with me about those three shots," Mrs. Connally told Newsweek magazine in its Nov. 23 issue. "I do know what happened in that car."

The Warren Commission concluded in 1964 that one bullet passed through Kennedy's body and wounded Connally, and that a second bullet struck Kennedy's head, killing him. It concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone gunman.

The Connallys maintained that two bullets struck the president 35 years ago and a third hit the governor. Connally died in 1993 at 75.

The Warren Commission concluded there also was a bullet that missed the car. Some conspiracy theorists argue that if three bullets struck the men and a fourth missed, then there must have been a second gunman because one person could not have fired four rounds from Oswald's bolt-action rifle so quickly.

Mrs. Connally said that personal notes she wrote a few weeks after the assassination reaffirm her belief of the number of shots.

She wrote that after hearing the first shot, Connally turned to his right to look back at Kennedy "and then wheeled to the left to get another look at the president. He could not, so he realized the president had been shot."

Then, she wrote, Connally "was hit himself by the second shot and said, 'My God, they are going to kill us all!' "
